Life 100,000 Years Ago.

Scientists have found in a cave in Switzerland bones of man who lived 100,000 years ago, when life was in constant danger from wild beasts. To-day the danger, as shown by A. W. Brown of Alexander, Me., is largely from deadly disease. "If it had not been for Dr. Kling's New Discovery, which cured me, I could not have lived," he writes, "suffering as I did from a severe lung trouble and stubborn cough." To cure sore lungs, colds and obstinate coughs, and prevent pneumonia, it's the best medicine on earth. 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by the Red Cross Pharmacy. Trial bottle free.

MONTPELIER

Prof. E. E. Thompson has accepted a position to teach modern languages in the Winchester High school, Winchester, Mass. Prof. Thompson was until a year ago principal of the Montpelier public schools, resigning to take a trip abroad for study. He went to Europe with Prof. L. J. Hathaway of this city, they returned last month.

Cards have been received in this city announcing the marriage of Herbert L. Dean and Mary, daughter of Mrs. Charlotte Leonard, of Gayville, Me., ceremony taking place at Gayville Monday. Mr. Dean is a well known traveling salesman who has made Montpelier his headquarters many years. He was a long time with the D. L. Fuller Hardware company of this city, and since then has been with John B. Varick Co. of Manchester, N. H. The bride was bookkeeper at the Holden mill at Penacook, N. H., and resided in Gayville.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Mathers left yesterday for a journey through the west. They went to Boston and will take a trip through the Great Lakes, then direct to Seattle, visiting Yellowstone park. Their return trip from Seattle is not planned. They will be away six weeks.

The trustees of Kellogg-Hubbard library have ordered several articles, which are to be placed on the lawn in front of the edifice, and the commissioners of Green Mount cemetery have decided to follow suit by ordering several more to be placed there. The board of trade has decided to place a number around the city in various places for the public to rest when occasion arises, and altogether the idea is one which is extremely commendable.

C. J. Bailey station agent at Groton arrived in the city yesterday morning. He will be station agent and train dispatcher at the local Montpelier and Wells River station during the leave of absence of Fred N. Parrott, the regular man. His place at Groton is taken by H. E. Sargent, of Boltonville, who has finished work there. Miss Flora Sleeper has taken up her work as agent at Boltonville in place of Mr. Sargent.

Insurance From Italy.
Insurance came from medieval Italy. It is believed to date from the sixteenth century, and at that time it was known in Florence. The Romans did not know insurance. The nearest they came to it was the practice of a company supplying the army to require a guarantee from the state against the loss of ships. But this was soon abandoned, because damages had been collected for sunken ships too worthless to float.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW

What a Heap of Happiness It Would Bring to Barre Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back.
Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work.
If women only knew the cause—that backache pains come from sick kidneys.

"Wouldn't you have much needless woe. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, Barre people endorse this:

Mrs. J. L. Cummings, 80 Elm street, Barre, Vt., says: "I have the same confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills today as when I testified to their merit three years ago. Experience has proven to me that the claims made for this remedy are well founded. The worst symptom of kidney trouble in my case, was a sharp pain in my hips, often lasting for three days at a time. During such attacks I could not sleep and it was with the greatest difficulty that I got about the house. It happened to catch cold, it settled in my kidneys and aggravated the trouble. I used any number of remedies but found more relief from Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at E. A. Drown's drug store than from any preparation I had previously taken. They relieved the pains in my back, strengthened my kidneys and proved themselves in every way to be a reliable kidney remedy." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A DEBT OF HONOR.

The Debtor, the Creditor and the Promissory Note.

The inconsiderate creditor pressed for immediate payment of his promissory note.

"But I have no money," said the debtor wearily.

"I saw you pay that man who just went out," retorted the creditor indignantly.

"That was a debt of honor," replied the other, with hauteur.

The creditor immediately tore up the promissory note which he held in his hand and threw it in the fire.

"So is mine a debt of honor," he remarked simply.

So far so good, and the matter is proceeding along the proper lines for such cases made and provided.

The debtor assured himself that the promise to pay had been really consumed.

"Pardon me," he then politely said, "but you tore up that note voluntarily and from mercenary motives. I cannot therefore recognize it as a debt of honor."

Which proves that a nice sense of honor is a good thing to have lying about handy.

The creditor smiled indulgently.

"Oh, that was only a copy I tore up," he replied. He took another note from his pocket. "This is the original, you see," he remarked, with pardonable pride.

Which proves again that a careful man before burning his bridges assures himself that the ferry is still doing business at the same old stand.—Exchange.

SHOCKED THE HOSTESS.

A Practical Joke That Was Perpetrated by Eugene Field.

There are many stories incident to the career of the late Eugene Field, who not only wrote songs for the children, but who was at times fond of practical jokes, which illustrate his inimitable humor.

On one occasion he played an unexpected part at a dinner given in honor of himself and his wife which, while it had its serious side, was made all the more enjoyable by the grave deportment of Mr. Field.

The dinner was given by a leading Chicago family. When all were seated Mr. Field repaired to the pantry, only to return in a few moments with a dozen or more costly gold embroidered wineglasses, the property of the hostess, which, to her silent astonishment, he proceeded to hand over to each guest one by one, a souvenir of the occasion.

Great was the merriment when it was realized that the hostess had not contemplated parting with her cherished glasses. But Mr. Field was not yet content. Returning them to the pantry by previous arrangement with the butler, he took up a tray of old bottles and other broken glassware and, pretending to stumble, dropped it on the floor, apparently shattering the valuable wineglasses.

The feelings of the hostess may be imagined, for it was some time before the real situation was understood.

PONT DU GARD.

An Ancient Concrete Bridge in the South of France.

In the south of France is a concrete arch bridge known as the Pont du Gard, which was erected in the year 56 B. C. The concrete in this was not composed of crushed stone or other small aggregate of the variety now employed in concrete bridge work, but was of the old style, consisting of alternate layers of large and small stones, gravel, etc., and of cementitious materials. Vitruvius describes the materials and methods in use before the Christian era, and other writers like Alberti in 1845 and Palladio in 1570 accurately describe the method which "the ancients" (as they call them) employed "of using boards laid on edge and filling the space between with cement and all sorts of small and large stones mingled together."

It is very improbable that the Pont du Gard would have withstood the rigors of climate of the northern United States, but its actual state of preservation, as well as that of many other specimens of ancient concrete work, proves that if modern work is honestly executed it will many times outlast any reasonable bond period, so that a very small yearly sinking fund per cent is all that is required for properly designed and erected concrete work.—Cement Age.

RAINSFORD'S FIRST LION.

The Reverend Hunter's Description of His Exciting Adventure.

The Rev. Dr. William S. Rainsford, who won fame as the strenuous and radical rector of St. George's Episcopal church, New York, and who resigned his charge because of ill health, has been spending fourteen months lion hunting in Africa and has now entirely recovered his normal degree of energy. He landed in New York recently and is now engaged on a book about his experiences in British East Africa. He hunted in the same district of Africa where Mr. Roosevelt is busy shooting lions, and Dr. Rainsford says he himself never had any scrapes about shooting these beasts, they are so dangerous and cruel. In telling of how he killed his first lion he wrote in World's Work:

"The lion of my dreams he seemed—big and black, with no common blackness, surely the true king of that wild and beautiful place. Slowly, on and on, till in the middle of the narrow, green, grassy aisle he stood, the sun shining full on his magnificent coat and the dark, rich, low hanging mane that covered his shoulders. Then slowly, carelessly, he turned his broad black head toward me and sniffed the tainted air that drifted down to him."

"A deep, grunting roar answered my shot, and quickly he swung round his body toward where it came from. As he did so I fired very quickly again, just as fast as I could move my Mauser's bolt. Then he saw me and with another deep grunt came straight for where I sat with great, long bounds. "The distance from where I sat to where the lion stood I measured carefully afterward. It was 170 yards, and now he came 120 of them faster than I could have believed it possible for any badly wounded beast to come. The grass was just long enough to hide his body from me except when he was actually bounding in his stride. If I had risen to my feet, of course, I could have seen him more clearly, but I had thought the whole thing out beforehand and had determined to remain seated.

"At about fifty yards the lion raised his head high above the grass and slowed down to a trot, and as I saw his breast, I shot full into it, and the great dark head and yellow eyes sank slowly from sight again. There was just one instant's pause, and out of the grass came the big fore feet and the tip of the tail. He was dead."

BILL LANGE'S FEAT.

One of the Famous Old Outfielder's Sensational Catches.

The greatest individual feat ever performed was one by which Bill Lange saved a game for Chicago and $200 for himself in Washington in 1895. There is an odd story connected with the play. Lange had missed a train in Boston two days before, failed to reach New York in time to play there, and Anson had fined him $100. Thereupon he missed a train to Washington—arrived on the grounds after the teams had practiced and just in time to play, and for that Anson fined him another $100. The game that afternoon went eleven innings, Chicago scoring one run in the eleventh. There were two men out and a runner on the bases when "Kip" Solbach, then one of the hardest hitters in the business, smote the ball a terrific blow and sent it flying over Lange's head toward the center field fence. The hit seemed a sure home run, but Lange, a man weighing 225 pounds, turned and without looking sprinted desperately straight out toward the fence, racing with the flying ball. At the last instant, as the ball was going over his head, Lange leaped, stuck up both hands, turned a somersault and crashed against the fence. The boards splintered, one entire panel crashed outward, and out of the wreckage crawled Lange, holding the ball in his hand, and the crowd went mad. Lange came limping in, with the crowd standing on seats shouting, and he said to Anson, "Fines go, cap!" "Nops," said Anson, and the catch had saved the bigfelder $200.—Hugh S. Fullerton in American
